While there's no shortage of charity walk events, the Walk to Defeat ALS is different—not a single survivor will be in attendance of the event. ALS remains the only disease with no known cause, no effective treatment, and no cure.

The pandemic forced the Chapter to pivot, and this year more than ever we need your help to continue providing our programs and services. All funds raised in the Wisconsin Walk to Defeat ALS events go directly towards equipment and services to benefit Wisconsin residents and families living with ALS.

As a Chapter, we offer a wide range of sponsorship levels and benefits. We welcome you to review our sponsorship options on the following pages to find an opportunity that works best for your organization.

CALLING ALL LOCAL HEROES

We need your support.

By becoming a 2022 Walk to Defeat ALS Sponsor, you're giving the ALS Association Wisconsin Chapter the opportunity to be the superheroes Wisconsin individuals with ALS need.

DEAR ALS SUPPORTER,

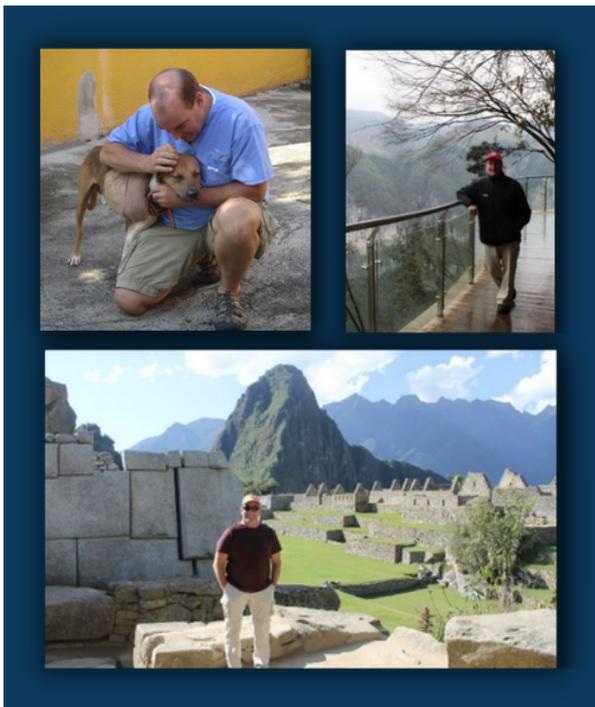

My name is Brenna and Dr. Joe is my dad.

My father is Dr. Joe Kelley, and he lost his battle with ALS in November of 2020. After over 4 years of fighting every day, his body was ultimately taken by this cruel disease. During the course of his years long battle, we watched ALS take and take from him bit by bit and had to learn to say goodbye along the way.

Dr. Joe had Bulbar ALS, which means that the disease began by affecting his speech and swallowing. It wasn't until about the last year of his life that the rest of his body became affected.

Dr. Joe was a world traveler and a renowned Veterinarian. He gave freely of his time and talents to animals around the world, helping with overpopulation in foreign countries. On a trip to China, he even spent a few months pursuing alternative medicine in hopes of slowing progression of the disease.

He would've tried anything to buy time with his "girls," his wife Jodi and daughters, Morgan and Brenna. ALS took the most important things from him - his voice, which he used to tell the funniest and most elaborate stories, speak to his clients and their human caregivers, and cheer at Packer games.

His ability to swallow assailed his love for food, which he passed on to others by grilling and smoking and perfecting new recipes to share.

Ultimately, his body failed and his lack of mobility robbed him of the joy he found being outside and being physical, a passion which took him to all corners of the earth and to the tops of mountains. Wherever he went throughout his life he made friends and carried them through to the end.

ALS is a severely underfunded disease.
A cure is out there, however, there's not enough funding to find it...yet.

Myself, my family, and all others affected by this disease plead for others attention to the people and families suffering, and we ask that you put forth the funds to find a cure. My father is missed dearly by so many and we wish for no one else to have to endure the loss that we feel every day.

People often don't know how they can help people affected by ALS and the Walks are an answer for them.

The Madison Walk to Defeat ALS is a perfect way to show support for those with ALS and their loved ones fighting with them. This event is so fun and important for people with ALS to see that they aren't alone and that there are advocates and people fighting for a cure all around them. Whether they are donating in support of a team, volunteering or simply showing up, and raising awareness. Three years in, and Team "Super Doc" grows larger and larger every year.

- Brenna Kelley, daughter of "Super Doc" Joe Kelley
